

Safety coaching

Bringing in the drama
Taking out the crisis

Who should attend?

This intensive 2 day programme is suitable for Supervisors and first line Managers who wish to develop their safety coaching skills to a higher level.

Our Safety Coaching course is high impact, with immediate benefits, and the one that always makes a big difference to our clients' businesses.

Our team has the unrivalled expertise and experience necessary to transform the engagement skills of your key people.

Key Topics:

By the end of the programme participants will:

- have explored the behavioural / systemic root causes of unsafe acts within their own workplace
- understand the principles and application of safety coaching for building a sustainable safety culture
- understand the difference between process and personal safety
- have developed strategies for tackling difficult safety related conversations
- have formulated concrete actions for addressing safety related issues within their own work site
- have demonstrated their capabilities by conducting observed live on-site safety coaching conversations

Key Benefits:

The transferable benefits of this programme are:

- increased Supervisory visibility in the workplace
- increased pro-active feedback
- an increase in the quality and quantity of on-site safety conversations
- an increase of the quality and quantity of recorded unsafe acts and conditions
- the development of coaching skills transferable to many aspects of people management
- the identification of not only personal but process safety issues within the workplace

"Macnaughton McGregor is a tried and tested company with powerful results. Once you have seen them in action and the difference they make, there is no going back. You will wish you had brought them in earlier."

Jason Woodward, HSSEQ Manager, Svitzer Europe

Onsite Safety Coaching

If classroom learning is not effectively transferred to the work place, positive change will be a slow and fractured process.

On day 2 of the programme we coach participants conducting real safety conversations within their own working environment in order to build confidence and support positive commitment. This allows the workshop skills to be translated into tangible workplace practice.
